

For Immediate Release

Electroengine amongst GP Bullhound's Announcement of The Cleantech Connect Top 30 and the 'Ones to watch'.

4 November 2011

For the third year running, GP Bullhound has published a list of the 30 fastest growing Cleantech companies in Europe, based on their financial performance between 2008 and 2010. The award winners for fastest growing, leadership, potential, and innovation, including an award for younger companies in the category 'Ones to Watch', will be announced at an invitation-only Cleantech Connect Awards dinner on 10 November in London.

Electroengine in Sweden AB has been nominated in the category 'Ones to Watch'. To see the full list: <http://cleantech-connect.com/about> Cleantech Connect features the hottest and fastest growing Cleantech companies in Europe and has become one of the key events for CEOs and industry leaders to network and share their experiences. Companies featured come from a wide variety of sectors including energy efficiency, solar, smart grid, water and transportation signaling a growing momentum across the Cleantech Sectors.

Andre Shortell, Partner, GP Bullhound, and a member of the Judging Panel, said, "Cleantech is such a fast moving space, and there are many innovative players entering each year. We have found the quantity and the quality of this year's entries to be extremely high and this is really challenging our judges. It speaks volumes about the coming of age of a number of Cleantech sectors."

Keynote speaker for this year is Anton Daubner. Anton is CEO of agri.capital, one of Europe's leading companies in biogas and biomethane. Agri.capital owns and operates nearly 100 sites in Germany, Italy and Austria with over 60 megawatts installed capacity.

- ENDS -

Notes to Editors

About Cleantech Connect

Cleantech Connect features the hottest and fastest growing Cleantech companies in Europe. For the third year running GP Bullhound publishes a list of the fastest growing Cleantech companies. From this list the most outstanding companies are nominated to present to the high profile judging panel from within the Cleantech industry. The companies will be ranked by their annual revenue growth rate between financial year end 2008-2010.

Cleantech Connect is an invitation-only awards ceremony held for industry leaders and the CEOs of those companies listed in Cleantech Connect. The 2011 awards ceremony will be held in London on the 10 November at Sketch.